

I cannot imagine sitting next to one or two people shouting into their cell phones in the packed environment of an airplane. It is disturbing and distressing to think that passengers who choose to relax, read or sleep would be exposed to this. Have we forgotten civil behavior where people have consideration for others. Passengers and stewardesses will have no recourse if the FCC allows this. Business people - myself included - can survive for a few hours without their cell phones. Do NOT allow cellphones to remain on during flight.
